A SHORT LONG ISLAND LOVE STORY.-Miss Ida Foster, youngest daughter of a wealthy citizen of Flushing, L. I., was to have been married last Wednesday to a neighbor named Hicks, the prospective possessor of $75,000. At least so her parents ordained, and so it was announced. Miss Ida herself, too, had countenanced the report to the extent of going to church with Hicks and appearing in his company at places of popular resort. But on the day before that appointed for the marriage Miss Ida was not to be found. The same morning Frank Slocum, the day fireman of the engine at the Flushing Water-Works was not at his post. Subsequent investigation disclosed the fact that Miss Ida had followed Hicks to the gate as he left the house the evening the expectant arms of Slocum, who straightway took her to his parents' house in Jersey City, where they were married. > "Viewed as a battle by Mr. Blaine for party supremacy in his State under his own leadership, it is a positive victory; but viewed as a finger-board of the presidential struggle, it affords little substantial comfort to Republicanism.
